WARM DAY FOR CITY TEACHERS

OPENING SESSION OF THEIR ANNUAL INSTITUTE.

Dr. George W. Phillips, City Superintendent of Schools, Gave a Short Address in Calling the Teachers to Order-An Address Was Also Delivered by President John Gibbons. Prof. E. L. Kemp and Dr. George E. Groff Were the Instructors-Programme for Today's Sessions.

Nearly everybody but the teachers had a holiday yesterday. They spent the sweltering afternoon in the High school auditorium and heard as well as circumstances would permit, all that the learned speakers had to say at the city institute. While it was rather more comfortable there than might have been expected, it was by no means the summer resort most of the teachers had left in order to be pres-

It was an exceptionally attractive asemblage, for the faces were not worn and tired and they wore light, pretty frocks, and there were many flutterings of ribbons and glimpses of rosy cheeks. Of course, there were men, in groups more or less morose in hue, but

Dr. George W. Phillips was greeted with much enthusiasm on the occasion of his first appearance in an official capacity as superintendent since his election. In his own pleasant way, he greeted the teachers, but with a certain nervousness, he said, because of the novelty of the situation. He referred to the unintentional fixing of the institute on Labor Day as its beginning and tentatively suggested that if the teachers preferred to come on Friday afternoon, instead of the present occasion, they might-but at this everyone having already come on the present oceasion, laughed outright.

OPENED WITH MUSIC.

The institute began with music, led by Prof. C. B. Derman, and as if the halo of the summer girl still lingered, over those in attendance, the song of "Juanita" was one asked for-and the refrain of "Ask thy sould if we should part," ending with "Lean thou on my heart," was sung with apparent regard for the sentiment.

Dr. Phillips introduced President John Gibbons, of the board of control, who gave one of his characteristic speeches, brimful of good nature and kindly expressions of regard for the teachers. He spoke of the salaries, and declared that while the board had hoped to increase them $10 this year, it had been impossible, but that the teachers would receive the missing $5 next year, and that the term would also be reduced. The limit of salaries, as regards length of service, has been reduced from thirteen years to nine years.

Mr. Gibbons was greeted with a sterm of applause on his appearance and it was evident that he is very popular with the teachers. Dr. John O'Malley was the only other member of the board on the platform during the afternoon.

Prof. E. L. Kemp, principal of the Stroudsburg Normal school, began a series of talks, which he will give, taking as his subject, "Geography," but in Held at Nay Aug Park Yesterday its relation to history. He said that learning to know what sort of national life we have and how we came to have it. Physical features of the land is one of the factors used in the development of national life.

No Spaniard could endow a university with so much money, because he had not the cash. The Spaniards had no such resources as

Prof. Kemp then detailed his application of the introduction by showing an easy method of teaching history. The Revolutionary war, he said, is always a hard proposition for the student. If he would recall the fact that Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Charleston and Savannah were the only points of conflict, because they were the desired keys to the situation, it would be an easy matter to gather incidents about these centers. After an intermission, Miss Louise Connelly, of Newark, was introduced and gave a charming talk. She is considered one of the best instructors at institutes in America, and is always heard with vivid interest. She illustrated in a graphic way the kind of literature that the High school children of Boston read. She urged the teach-"Not the least chance of any such ers to learn to know good literature and teach the children to know it. This cannot be done by selecting an author, rather pitiable state. DR. GROFF'S ADDRESS. Dr. George E. Groff, of Bucknell university, gave one of the most interesting addresses possible. He knocked down a few more idols and destroyed the popular notion that this state was settled by Penn. When he began by stating that Pennsylvania had a very mixed population, nobody was astonished, but when he proceeded to assert that this state had a most heterogencous variety of settlers, and that we had all nationalities from the beginning, his audience sat up and listened more attentively. He said that the Dutch were here from ancient days, so long indeed, that no record can be found of the date. In 1594 they had families living on the Delaware. Then there were also Germans, French, Spanish, Portuguese, Poles, Finns, Itallans, Welsh, English, Irish and Scotch. The Dutch came first. There was a Dutch settlement above Stroudsburg twenty years after the English settled nobody knew when or where it began. It disappeared, and Dr. Groff calls it 'The Lost Colony of the Delaware." The Peter Corselius Plockhoy colony was the first on the continent to explicitly state that there should be no slavery within its bounds. "Neither foul flies, lord nor slave," said its constitution. It had a most interesting history, thirty years of which is obliterated. The Acadians, to the number of 600, were put on shore at Philadelphia and forsaken by the English. From these sprang many families which still have French blood. The Quakers were here before William Penn, and the Germans, whom Franklin called ignorant, were not ignorant, but had books and education. In closing, Dr. Groff said that Porto Rico has much the same heterogeneous population as Pennsylvania

Park Policeman Callahan Roughly Handled by Reckless Driver. Finally Subdued.

Park Policeman William Callahan had troubles of his own yesterday in arresting a very surly and slightly inthrough the park at a breakneck rate of speed. Callahan was almost ridden tators to their feet by a remarkable down, and was then thrown out of the buggy, but finally managed to land his man at the central police station.

About 6.30 o'clock the youth in question drove through the grounds, and slacken up. A few minutes later he returned, still driving furiously. "Whoa, there!" yelled the policeman, and "Fudge," responded the driver coldly.

"Look out or I'll run you down," he then remarked sweetly, but finally drew rein and heard Callahan inform him that he was under arrest. "I am, am I?" he remarked. "Well, go ahead, my merry bucko, and arrest me." Callahan climbed into the buggy, and an instant later was thrown out of it. His re was somewhat aroused by this time, and he made an angry grab at the belligerent and pulled him from the buggy. "Now, since you won't ride, you can walk," said he, and after a little forcible persuasion had been used, his captive meekly accompanied him to the central station. His rig was later brought down by Park Policeman Mc-Manaman. The horse had been overworked and abused, and was in a mained surly at the station and refused to give his name, but declared that the from Dunmore.

LUZERNE TEAM WON?

Issue Was in Doubt Until the Last Scranton Batter Was Retired. Brennan's Star Play.

Scranton's semi-professional team net defeat yesterday afternoon before a big Labor day crowd, at the hands of the fast Luzerne team. The game was gingery and exciting, and the Issue in doubt until the last Scranton batter was retired in the ninth inning.

Griffin and Simmerman opposed each other in the box. Each gave the same number of hits. Griffin struck out five of the visitors, while the Luzernite was unable to cause any of the locals to fan. He was steady as a clock, howver, and did not give a single base on balls. Griffin only gave one, but this resulted in a run.

The features of the game were the swift fielding of Pughe, Brennan and Cross, of the visitors, and the splendid batting of Madenspacher, of the locals. The latter secured a double and three in Philadelphia, which was so old that singles, in five times up. The scoring began early in the game. In the first inning Luzerne gathered four unearned runs. Fahy, the first man up, made his base on Owens' error, after successive chances had been given both Owens and Wirth to retire him on easy

> The following two batters were disposed of, and the side would have been retired, had it not been for the misplays on Fahy. As it was, safe drives were made by Dougherty, Brennan, Robbins and Cross, and four runs resulted. Madenspacher opened for Scranton by beating out an infield hit, and stealing second. Touhill took first when Pughe juggled his drive, and ooth men scored on Ferris' out, and Culkin's hit.

> The locals took a brace more of runs in the third, Griffin's single, Maden-spacher's double, and an error by Robbins being productive of the tieing tallies. Pughe singled in the fifth for Wilkes-Barre and by excellent baserunning stole second and third and scored on an infield out. In the same inning, singles by Griffin, Maden-spacher and Frantz, and Touhill's fly game. Dougherty's single, Wirth's passed ball, and singles by Robbins and Cross brought in two more tallies. Scranton made a desperate attempt to win in the ninth. Fahy's error gave Wirth his base. Griffs. advance him, but his long fly fell in the glove of Cross.

Madenspacher came to the rescue with a safe smash for one base, but all Frantz could do was to give Fahy an easy fly. It was up to Touhill to win the game. The University of Michigan player hadn't batted safely all day, and fans concluded that he was just bout due for a hit. He caught one of Simmerman's slow ones on the end of his bat, and the ball sailed far into left field. Cross was after it like a deer, however, and wound up the game by a pretty catch. Both Owens and Frantz, of the home luck. In the sixth inning, Pughe retired Owens by making a magnificent toxicated young man, who was driving jumping catch of his hot liner, and in the seventh Brennan brought the speccatch of Frantz's long drive to right.

The third baseman had banged a long, hard fly over the Luzerne man's head, and it looked like a sure threetion drove through the grounds, and bagger. "Make a home run out of it, heeded not Callahan's mild order to Heinie," an enthusiastic rooter yelled, and just then the lanky Mr. Brennan, who had beeen doing a backward run which would put to shame a Jesse Burkett or Elmer Flick, sprang into the air, grabbed the ball nonchalantly with one hand, and trotted into the diamond as complacently as though such plays The score:

CLOTHING CAUGHT FIRE FROM A CANDLE.

YOUNG WOMAN

Miss Mary Mawn, of Irving Avenue, Accidentally Set Fire to Her Dress. and Before the Flames Could Be Extinguished Received Terrible Burns Which Proved Fatal-Candle Dropped to the Floor and the Flame Ignited the Bottom of Her Skirt-Died at 11.30.

Miss Maggle Mawn, the 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Mawn, of 212 Irving avenue, met a terrible death yesterday, as a result of her dress being set ablaze by the flame of a candle.

The accident which proved so fatal in its results, occurred about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Miss Mawn had lit a small candle in order to brighten up the interior of a clothes closet. As she moved towards the door of the room, the candle suddenly slipped from her hand and fell to the floor. She stooped hurriedly to pick it up and her skirt caught the blaze. She wore a dress of filmsy, inflammable material, which in an instant was a sheet of flame. The unfortunate girl shricked for aid, and her cries brought members of the family to her assistance. They found her enveloped in fire, and immediately bent their energies on saving her.

She was enveloped in a blanket, and thrown on a couch, where desperate fforts were made to extinguish the flames. This was quickly done, but it was readily seen that the burns Miss Mawn had sustained were of a frightful nature. The clothes had been burned from her body, and the flesh of her face and body singed and scorched into a cinder-like mass, which almost prevented recognition. An alarm of fire had been sounded, but the South Scranton companies, on their arrival, found that the blaze had been already extinguished. Drs. John P. O'Malley and Henry Halpert were summoned to attend to the young woman and recommend her removal to the Lackawanna hospital.

Dr. Sallady, the resident house sureon, responded with the ambulance, and removed Miss Mawn to the hospital. Soothing remedies were administered to soften the pain, but from the first little hope was entertained of saving her life. She died at 11.30 o'clock.

BUTTONS AWED HIM NOT.

Five-Year-Old Was Perfectly at Home at Police Headquarters.

A large number of small boys were lost in the crowd which watched the parade yesterday, and were taken to the central police station, where they were held until anxious parents called for them. One little urchin proved the least daunted by blue coats and brass buttons of any of the countless youngsters who have found their way into the station at divers times. the station at divers times.

He must have been all of five years old, and claimed to come from West Scranton. He was a barefoot boy, but clothes were full of rents and whose features were covered with grime. He sat in the corridor with a group of patrolmen for awhile, calmly wiggling ten dirty little toes. He then suddenly cigar butt, and proceeded to light and smoke it.

"A precoclous boy, indeed," remarked one of the patrolmen, and just then the remarkable child arose, stretched himself in a blase manner, and remarked he thought he'd run in and see the chief. He entered the sergeant's office and climbing under the chain barrier, took a seat and grinned amiably at Supérintendent Day. The latter looked team, batted in the hardest kind of at the bad looking cigar and the small boy, and remarked gently: "Better throw that away, son. It won't agree

"Say," said the small youth confidentially, "you make me tired. I'm goin' to quit you." With which he joined the patrolmen in the corridor. with whom he remained until his father's arrival.
